WHITE WINGED DOVE OF PEACE

Flutters Over Hostile Bands
In First District Counties.

LET GOOD WORK GO ON.

Complete Understanding Arrived at in Time to Avert Bloodshed.

The Courier-Journal of Thursday contained the following dispatch from Paducah:

"Members of the Dark Tobacco Growers' Association and independent tobacco growers have effected a compromise, and all is peace and harmony in Lyon and Caldwell counties. Every resident in these counties may now go to bed with no fear of molestation from 'night riders.'"

Final adjustment was effected yesterday at Kuttawa. The Dark Tobacco Growers' delegates agreed to see that no more lawlessness is perpetrated, that independent dealers go unmolested, and further, that the writing of anonymous letters threatening destruction of property if the receiver does not join the Dark Tobacco Growers' forces, shall cease. Independent and Association men settled upon this same basis in Caldwell county some two weeks ago, but Lyon county seemed to be the hotbed of the trouble, and after several futile attempts a conference was held between representatives of both factions.

"We simply informed the Dark Tobacco Growers that if any further lawlessness developed, we would resort to the same methods, and for every Independent barn burned, we would burn ten Association barns." A well-known Kuttawa tobacco man stated this had the desired effect.

"They realized we could play the game as well as they, and an agreement was easily reached."

This sort of an understanding between the two sides was advised by the Kentuckian two months ago and if a basis of harmony has been reached, the good citizens on both sides are to be congratulated. While there has been no formal agreement in this county, there has been a general understanding that unlawful methods would not be resorted to. A general policy of reprisal in barn-burning and bed-seraping, which is sure to come if such lawlessness becomes prevalent, would be ruinous to prosperity and work untold harm to the Association, which alone has to look to public approval for its moral support and continued usefulness. If this kind of an agreement can be reached in a few other counties infested with a lawless element, and both sides will in good faith see that it is carried out, the Association will be greatly strengthened and its continued success will be assured.

It is not certain that the Association is responsible for the outrages in some counties, but as the night riders claim to be operating in the interest of the Association, there are but two things to be done. One is to control the night riders and the other is to repudiate and denounce them as without authority to commit crimes in the name of a lawful body, made up of God-fearing men and good citizens.

Let us all hope that the "Kuttawa agreement" may bring peace—peace without bloodshed. With all the over-heated talk on both sides, not one drop of blood has yet been shed and God grant that this may be said when the tobacco trouble is all over. The Association is doing a great work, it is proving itself a blessing to the people. To use the statistics of Hon. Joel B. Port in a recent address, it has saved to the tobacco growers $4,500,000 on two crops alone, then why not let it go ahead and complete its triumph as a band of brothers, persuading rather than driving those slow to see the advantages of a permanent, and above all, a peaceful organization?

JAMESTOWN CONTEST.

Nearly 3,000 Votes Cast Since Last Report.

About three thousand votes have been cast since our last report. This does not include the numerous coupons issued to subscribers who have paid up and ahead, but who are reserving their votes for the future. There was one new entry this week, Miss Marion Burris, in district No. 1, whose address is Hopkinsville R. R. No. 2. Among the January coupons, clipped from the Kentuckian and sent in, we found a few bearing date of December. These of course, were not counted, as the coupons appearing each month must be counted in the same month in which they appear in the paper.

The following is the standing of contestants in yesterday's count:

COUNTY COMMITTEE

Will Meet Monday to Hear Reports.

The County Committee of the Dark Tobacco Association, of which Mr. W. W. Radford is Chairman, will meet at the court house Monday to hear reports from the various districts. The committee meets once a month and much routine business will be up for consideration. Mr. Will A. Giss is the secretary of the committee.

Brame-Thomas.

Mr. Mack Brame and Miss Ennice Thomas, popular young people of the Benntown neighborhood, were married last Wednesday in this city. After the license had been secured, they went to the parsonage of the Cumberland Presbyterian church and in the presence of a few witnesses were united in marriage by Rev. A. C. Biddle.

METHODIST REVIVAL.

Rev. Walt Holcomb Delivered Powerful Sermon Thursday Night.

INTEREST INCREASING.

Mr. Smoot Called Home to the Bedside of His Mother.

There is no diminution in the attendance at the services at the Methodist church and there are evidences of increasing interest.

Mr. Smoot, who had left the city in answer to a call summoning him to the bedside of his mother, at her home in Washington, Ind., will return if his mother's illness does not prove fatal.

The song service Thursday night was conducted by Mr. Holcomb. After a fervent prayer by Mr. Bull, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, in which he invoked God's blessing upon the services and asked, if agreeable to the divine will, that Mrs. Smoot be restored to health, Mr. Holcomb announced as his text the first and second verses of the 6th chapter of Galatians.

His remarks were addressed to the members of the church. Thus far he had not appealed directly to sinners, but he expected to have something to say to them later on. He showed in the most earnest and forcible way the duty of the spiritually strong to their weaker brothers.

The law of Christ is a law of love. He does not require anything that love does not demand. The attitude of the spiritually strong should be one of helpfulness. "Ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted."

When a man is overtaken in a fault we should not jump on him with both feet and crush the life out of him. There are some in the church who are as guilty as the sinner outside, only the latter have been caught in the act. There is a great difference in being overtaken by sin and overtaken in sin. Some in the church are so mixed up in sin that the devil has got you fast. Every backslider here tonight knows this.

Who is to restore them? "Ye who are spiritual." We are not only to reform but restore them. Some of you church members will answer "that lets me out," because you say you are too "meek," you can't do anything. They do not know the true spiritual meaning of meekness. We must bear one another's burdens. The greatest joy in this life is to have a brother roll the burden off his heart on to yours, and then roll the burden of both on to the heart of Jesus. God will hold you responsible for what you might have done, and not what you have done, and will judge you accordingly. Many of you backsliders are keeping out of God's kingdom because you have fallen and your lives are not what they should be, and the reason these have not answered my call to them is because you spiritual have not led them back to Christ and I couldn't drag them over your heads. You can never get them nearer to God than you have been yourself.

It seems sometimes that as soon as the Lord saves some sinners they turn to be idiots on the spot. They go off into worldliness. The women go to the theater, play cards and dance—some women only quit when they get so fat they can't dance, and others so lean that the men won't dance with them. Then they quit and think the Lord ought to reward them because they have quit dancing. You never get sinners any further from the world than you get yourself—never get them any nearer to God than you get yourself. We ought to call a halt on dancing. "There's no use in any sensible person, (said a lady in one of the evangelist's meetings after she had given up the dancing) trying to bring up an argument in favor of dancing. It's all wrong and you know it." Some of you are so "meek" that you say you can't move round. I don't want you to move "round." I want you to move down. Meekness is not timidity. Throw timidity to the four winds until you get above it. You will never do anything until you do.

When McKinley was killed our whole country was in trouble because it could not see who might fill his place in the hearts of the people and keep the machinery of the government running. But I had my eye on Teddy and believed that he had the grit to take hold and do the right thing. If he hasn't done more good for the people than any other President of our latter years—then I'll eat Teddy.

What is the incentive to make us help the backslider? "Considering thyself, lest ye be also tempted." Put yourself in his shoes. It's a very light matter sometimes to forget our brother's burden and sorrow, but when sorrow comes home, then it is a very different thing.

There are Christians here tonight who, with the same heredity, the same environment, the same opportunity, and with the same pressure brought to bear on them, would be where the backslider and the sinner are tonight. We must bear one another's burdens if we fulfill the law of Christ.

At the conclusion of his powerful sermon Mr. Holcomb called on all Christians of every denomination who wanted to be instrumental in leading the backslider back to God to go forward and give him their hand. Probably one-fourth of the congregation did so.

Dr. Lyon announced that another lot of song books had been ordered and could be had for 15 cents each. Prof. J. M. Ragsdale, who conducted the singing here during Pat Davis' revival, will be here to-day and take charge of the singing. No services to-day or to-night.

TEN NEW ROOMS

Planned for Baptist Church Sunday School.

The Baptist church at prayer meeting Wednesday evening instructed the Building Committee to bring in definite plans of the proposed addition to the church building, so far as concerns the Sunday school room. It is not likely that any changes in the main auditorium will be considered at this time. The need for more class rooms is urgent. It is quite likely that the raising of the amount estimated for this work will be undertaken to-morrow morning. About $3,500 is all that will be required for the addition of nine or ten rooms, about doubling the present floor room of the Sunday school rooms. Rev. M. A. Jenkins, the pastor, will leave early next week for his tour abroad and it is contemplated to have the work done when he returns in June. Rev. Geo. W. McPherson, the supply during the pastor's absence, will arrive to-day, but Dr. Jenkins will fill his own pulpit at both services tomorrow. The night service will be on "The unpardonable sin."

MRS. E. F. KINKEAD

Passes Away After Brief Illness of Pneumonia.

Mrs. Elizabeth F. Kinkead, wife of Mr. Jas. Kinkead, died Thursday morning at her home on Broad street. Death was due to pneumonia. Mrs. Kinkead was in her 63rd year and had been a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church for an number of years. Besides her husband she is survived by two children, John and Miss Belle Kinkead. Rev. A. C. Biddle conducted funeral services at her late residence yesterday morning and the interment took place in Hopewell Cemetery.

TALE OF TELEPHONE

MELODRAMATIC ROMANCE OF HO-TEL PROPRIETOR OF KIEL.He Called Pretty Telephone Girl a Hussy, But She Got Even
by Marring
Him."Whirr, whirr," went the telephone wheel. The young hotel proprietor of Kiel shook the instrument furiously.Why did the girl not answer?
"Whirr, whirr"—was there not one at the exchange?"Whirr, whirr." He would complain. With such a staff at the exchange, business would soon come to a standstill."Whirr, whirr." Was not the bell ringing itself to pieces at the other

"You Are an Impudent Hussy!"

end? Yet no one would answer.

"Hello—are you there?" he shouted.
"Yes." This at the end of a full twenty minutes."Why did you not answer before?"
demanded the young hotel proprietor."Busy, indeed," (contemptuously)
"I will report you. It is disgraceful the way you have kept me here," he added, still more enraged at the evasive answer at the other end of the telephone."Go on," came back, with some spite."I will. What is your name? I'll come round at once. Disgraceful!"
With these remarks he concluded, and giving full vent to his feelings, added: "You are an impudent hussy!"Two days later a letter lay before the young proprietor as he sat at breakfast. The contents did not appear to please him. Here was a fax!
The telephone girl had actually the audacity to bring an action for slander against him. What in the world was he to do? His breakfast passed untouched."Confound the girl," he murmured.
"The impudent hussy." Yet he felt that the law would not view the matter in the same light in which he himself was disposed to place it. Nor was he mistaken in his surmise, for some days later he left the court the poorer by a fine, and the richer by a little kindly advice from the judge on the subject of manners.Still, he did not mind that much.
What he did mind was "the impudent hussy." He had seen her in the court, and thereupon had instantly changed his opinion on the remarks that he had addressed to her.So much so had he changed that the next afternoon he called and apologized to the pretty telephone girl.
After this introduction he saw her often. And when he did not, he spoke to her through the telephone, and sent only the politest messages imaginable. Later, he discovered a word which, translated from the German, means "dear," and still later, his grammar kindly provided him with its superlative.So, to-day, the telephone girl and the handsome young hotel proprietor of Kiel are married.The young lady often reflects on the way in which good can come out of evil, but she is always amused to think that her husband came to her via the police court.Still, better he should come thus than not at all.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

HEADS BIG RAILROAD SYSTEM

James McCrea of Pittsburgh has assumed the reins of government of the Pennsylvania railroad lines, having been elected to succeed A. J. Cassatt as president of the company. He was also elected to all the vacancies created by the death of Mr. Cassatt.

That Mr. McCrea was fully in accord with the policy of Mr. Cassatt and that he will go on with the labors begun by him was assured by his announcement made directly after his election.

Like Mr. Cassatt, Mr. McCrea began at the very bottom of the ladder. Born in Philadelphia on May 1, 1848, he entered railroad service in June, 1865, as rodman and assistant engineer with the Connellsville & Southern Pennsylvania railroad and remained in that position for two years.

He then took the position of rodman on the Wilmington & Reading railroad. In 1868 he became an assistant engineer of the Allegheny Valley. In 1871 he went to the Pennsylvania and became an assistant engineer and division superintendent, manager, general manager and fourth vice president of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburgh. He was soon promoted to the second vice presidency and since 1881 has been first vice president.

McCrea also has been identified with other railroads. Since September 8, 1893, he has been president of the Cincinnati & Muskegon Valley railroad; since January 15, 1896, president of the Terre Haute & Indianapolis; and since August 1, 1896, president of the Grand Rapids & Indiana.

WILL DIRECT CAMPAIGN

With the retirement of George B. Cortelyou Harry S. New of Indiana becomes acting chairman of the Republican national committee. For several years Mr. New has been vice chairman of the organization, and numerous occasions he has demonstrated ability as a party leader, notably during the last presidential campaign, when he was in charge of the western quarters of the national committee. In that position he exerted himself in rolling up the tremendous plurality for Roosevelt and Fairbanks. He has a wide acquaintance with public men and is very popular personally. He has been delegate to many conventions, has served in the Indiana senate and was a captain of volunteers during the Spanish-American war.

The present Republican national committee will direct the organization of the next national convention. A national committee is a much more important body in Republican than in Democratic conventions as all contests in Republican conventions are first passed upon by the national committee and delegates seated by it are entitled to vote. Its work, of course, is reviewed by the credentials committee and the convention, but its power is shown by the manner in which the La Follette delegates from Wisconsin were turned down three years ago. It is expected there will be an unusually large number of contesting delegates from the south in the 1908 convention.

NEW MAJOR GENERAL

Maj. Gen. Jesse M. Lee, recently detached from command of the department of the Visayas in the Philippines, has been placed on the retired list of the army by operation of law at the age of 62. He is from Kentucky, and was graduated from the Military academy in the class of 1875. He was then appointed second lieutenant, Ninth cavalry, and became captain, Seventh cavalry, in March, 1899. He served with distinction in the volunteer army during the Spanish war and the Philippine insurrection. Entering as a major engineer, he subsequently commanded the Third United States volunteer infantry, and was appointed brigadier general of volunteers in December, 1899.

In recognition of his gallant services, the president promoted him in February, 1901, from captain, Seventh cavalry, to brigadier general in the regular army. While acting as superintendent of the General Staff college at Leavenworth, Kan., last spring he was summoned to Washington for duty as chief of staff to succeed Lieut. Gen. John C. Bates, retired.

FORTUNE TO AID IN POLITICS

As the second son of the earl of Rosebery it is not at all probable that Hon. Neil Prichard would ever have found himself in such straitened circumstances as would necessitate his work for a living. That is rendered a still more remarkable contingency by his recent inheritance of $500,000 and a big London house, under the will of his great aunt, Miss Lucy Cohen. Truly Hon. Neil is a lucky fellow. His elder brother, Lord De Montagu, came into the titles and estates some day, but heedily does not always follow the line of primogeniture, and it is well-known that he has been endowed with the bigger share of his father's ability and oratorical gifts. He is on 24, but years ago his friends predicted for him a brilliant political career; and it was to be his "make good" that Miss Cohen left him such a handsome slice of his fortune. He may have to wait, though, until the next general election before he finds a chance to seek parliamentary honors. There is little doubt that he will be elected whenever the opportunity occurs. When it comes to wooing a constituency $500,000 will go a long way.

Hon. Neil Prichard is a strapping fine fellow, and an uncommonly good looking one, too. Although he won high honors at Oxford and distinguished himself at athletics also, and was one of the best heavyweight boxers in the university. At polo, too, he is a hard man to beat.

"LUCKY PETE LARSON"

Pete Larson, 27 times a millionaire, has again proved his right to the title of "Lucky Pete Larson," by which he is known throughout the northwest. Next to Senator W. A. Clark, he is the richest man in the section. Thirteen years ago Larson landed in New York a poor Danish immigrant without a word of English. Thanks to his luck.

Pete Larson today walks the streets of Helena with all the vigor of a youth of 20, and the fact that less than a year ago medical experts told him he could not survive a month. All he did was to adopt some simple home remedies. "Lucky Pete" got a job on the government jetties being built in the south soon after his arrival in America. He saved $300 and went to Dakota. When the Northern Pacific started to build west from Hinsdale, Larson secured several contracts and thus reached Montana. He eventually secured contracts all along the Northern Pacific and built more of its mileposts than any one other man.

Larson's luck has never deserted him. He was a passenger on the ill-fated Clifton when she sank off Victoria two years ago. He had his own son about $200,000 in drafts, with which he intended to purchase some British Columbia mining properties.

He was thrown into the water, but contrived to find among the floats a slim door. To this he held with building tenacity for several hours, until rescued by the tug Sealion.

Larson is not what would be termed a good mixer. All is business with him. He is a member of but one fraternity, the Elks. More than six feet tall, he may best be described as a hustler.

His wife is a happily married and is noted for his freshheaded giving of speeches, charities and the woody.

THE BARRIERS OF WEALTH

By VENITA SEIBERT

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles.)

Pauline Pauline Von Engelsho fitted about her dainty room, humming a snatch of song; now she paused to arrange a dish of violets, now to give her hair a coquettish little twist, now to chirp softly to her bird.

Pauline Pauline's sewing girl bent her head over the skirt she was buttoning, but not one of these capricious graceful movements escaped her, and her whole soul was filled with longing and discontent. The fraulein was a young German lady visiting some American relatives; she was rich, she was loved and admired and made much of, she could fill in her dainty clothes and talk to her bird, and the sewing girl stitched away fiercely.

By and by Pauline Pauline took up a book, but her lovely eyes wandered. They studied the dark face of the girl bent over her work, noted the sallow skin, the tired droop of the shoulders, the heavy frown. Presently a soft hand was laid on the nervous fingers that held the needle, and a gentle voice said: "My dear, tell me what it is that troubles you?"

The girl looked up with startled eyes, then suddenly burst into tears. "Oh, fraulein, I hate to be poor! I hate it so! It is always work and work, and I have no pretty dresses and no pleasures!"

"Poor child, poor child!" said Pauline Pauline, thoughtfully. "You are young, and have nothing, and you are thinking that I, too, am young and have everything, am pretty and rich, and admired—is it not so?"

"My child, do you think rich people have everything they wish for?" she said softly. Far away in a German city, at one of the great music concerts, an artist and a young girl were introduced to each other. These two met many times thereafter, and life was very beautiful to them. Then came a change. The man's eyes could no longer hide the love that lay behind them, but he did not speak. The girl was an heiress, and he feared to be called a fortune hunter. She was also wealthy, and he was but a poor American; her wealthy relatives looked askance at him. He knew that he was not a fitting match for her. The girl did not wait for him, she wanted a mate. But, alas! she could not speak, she could only wait.

The sewing girl ventured to lay her hand on the hand of the girl, her eyes were filled with gentle tears. "Did you never see him again?" she asked softly.

The other girl lifted her face. "Never again," she said, quietly. "It is nearly two years ago now. I am too young not to find joy in my friends, my flowers and my birds my books and traveling, but the best thing in life I have missed, because I am rich! And now I want you to have a holiday this afternoon. It is a beautiful spring day, and you need some fresh air. I want you to walk in the park. The skirt can wait until to-morrow."

The girl glanced dubiously at a large bundle that she had brought with her. "These are vests," she said. "My sister sews them, and I must deliver them at the tailor shop this afternoon. It is away up on East Thirtieth street."

"I will deliver them myself," said Pauline Pauline, her natural gaiety breaking forth in delicious smiles. "Oh, no, not you yourself. They are very heavy, and they make an ugly bundle. Perhaps you could send some one."

"No! I shall play that I am a vest-maker taking home my week's work. I wish to see how it feels. It will be large fun."

Pauline Pauline did not take a cab, she was a good walker, and East Thirtieth street did not seem far off; nevertheless the vests were so heavy that before she reached her destination she grew very tired. She glanced wearily up the street, and suddenly her cheeks grew white, then pink. A man was coming directly toward her—a tall, brown-eyed man with dark hair curling upward under his straw hat. He bent upon her an eager face.

"Paul-Fraulein Pauline! Am I dreaming that I see you here?" he exclaimed.

The fraulein stretched out to him her left hand. "No, Herr Westcott. It is only me, and not a dream at all. Ach, it is good to see you again!"

He would give you both hands, but you see the other is occupied."

Herr Westcott dropped the little hand he was holding. Certainly his greeting had been too impulsive, and his eyes saddened.

"May I walk with you?" he asked, courteously.

"I shall be glad. I should like to talk of home; it seems so long since I left. Ich habe heimweh. You have not forgotten the dear old city and the pleasant little garden of The Lions?"

"Forgotten!"
Pauline Pauline was quite satisfied with the tone.

"Those were happy days," she continued. "Of course, you were accustomed to gayer pleasures, and they could not have been such happy days to you. It is not to be expected. But you left us without saying Auf Wiedersehen!"

"I was obliged to leave hurriedly, Pauline, and surely you must know that those were happy days to me also."

Pauline Pauline shifted the bundle on her arm, and Herr Westcott was overwhelmed with contrition. He had forgotten his manners.

"Oh, I beg your pardon! Let me have your bundle! Forgive me that I did not think of it sooner! You must be very tired!"

"Yes, I am very tired," Pauline Pauline glanced down at the bundle, and sighed deeply. "They are vests that I am taking to the tailor shop. It is a long way from where I live, and the shop is on Thirtieth street."

Herr Westcott started. He noted for the first time the contents of the bundle, the plain black hat, the simple gown. A light broke in upon him, he stopped, stared fixedly at the demure face and downcast eyes, then he lifted the bundle, and looked at it in dismay.

"You to carry such a long way! Is it possible, that all your wealth is gone, and that you are sewing vests for a living?"

"It does not pay well, but it is honest work," said Pauline Pauline, plaintively.

"Great heavens! It is monstrous! I could not have believed it possible! There was no one to look after you? Forgive me for speaking so, but I have always been interested in your welfare, and surely you will pardon a friend for his frankness."

"True sympathy is never out of place, Herr Westcott. Ach, strange things are possible. But you must know that my wealth was never the greatest thing to me. Not that it is very different now."

"Of that I am well aware, therefore

"Ich liebe dich!" She said, simply.

I deplore it for your sake; but for my own sake—
"Here we are at the tailor shop!" interrupted Pauline, in a sudden flutter. "You will wait without while I deliver the vests. I shall appear again directly."

In a very few moments they were proceeding on their way, minus the vests. Pauline Pauline held in her hand a five-dollar bill. "A week's salary!" she said, viewing it meditatively.

Suddenly a hand closed over the bill and the fingers that held it. "Pauline, at last I may speak! I had no right to before, but now you are poor, poor, and I cannot feel sorry, because I am so glad. Pauline, dear one, do you guess how I have loved you always from the very first? Sometimes I have thought that you were poor, and I did not let myself dwell long on that thought, but now I must know. Pauline!"

She lifted her long lashes and let him see what lay beneath. There was no coquetry in those clear depths now.

"Ich liebe dich!" she said, simply words that in any language need no translation.

After a long, long time, when they had once more become conscious of the pavements and the shops and the cars, Pauline Pauline said, "Ernest, my first care shall be to exterminate the one fault which I find in thee. Thou art too proud. I was left lonely and unhappy simply because I had more money than thou hadst, and thy pride could not bear the thought. Couldst thou not have loved me so well that wealth would have meant nothing to thee?"

"It was for your sake—"
"For my sake! Then thou didst not give me credit for equal depth of soul with thyself. Ach!"

"Pauline, trueness here, forgive me! I see my mistake."

"It is well, for I have a confession to make to thee. I have done my best to please thee by being poor, but I am still rich. Ach, it is a dreadful change of prospects, I am sure, but I trust to thy honor as a gentleman."

"Thou art a goose!" It is a Paris gown. Dost thou think that vest-makers wear such a fit. But, Ernest, thou has not said that I am forgiven for still being rich."

Herr Westcott drew her into an empty entry, and kissed her. "Dear little rack," he said, "I have learned my lesson!"

The Weather

For Kentucky—Probably rain Saturday.

More than 300 new cases of scarlet fever have appeared in Chicago.

A hastily organized mob came very near lynching a negro man in Pittsburgh Wednesday night, for choking a white newsboy. The police rescued him just in time.

Capt. B. J. Ewen, whom the Hargis gang indicted for perjury in connection with the Marcum murder trial, has been acquitted of the charge.

Representative John Sharp Williams has introduced a resolution providing for the investigation of the "paper trust," which has just announced another ten to fifteen per cent. advance on all lines of paper.

Senator Foraker has recommended a negro named R. H. Taylor for a consulate, but the President is preparing to give him a Brownsville emetic and appoint Taylor collector of the port at Cincinnati, his home town.

Mr. C. C. Pare, of Franklin, editor of the Favorite, is to be nominated for the State Senate in his district without opposition. He is one of the most popular newspaper men in the state, in every way deserving of the honor. What Kentucky needs is more business men like Pare and fewer politicians in the Legislature.

Still another "authorized statement" has been given out about the Oliver contract. It is to the effect that Oliver's Panama bid was "hopelessly defective" and may not be amended to bring it into serious consideration and it is all a mistake that the contract has been conditionally awarded to Oliver. It looks like plans were on foot to figure the Knoxville man out.

A young man at Coal Branch, N. B., almost married his sister. He advertised for a wife and the advertisement was answered by his sister from whom he had been separated in childhood. The girl had taken the name of faster parents. They met for the purpose of marrying, when the fact that they were born at the same place caused investigation, which led to the discovery that they were brother and sister. The girl remained as housekeeper for her brother.

In the pages of the February American Boy there is everything to please and delight its readers. The serials by Tomlinson, Shute, Sprague, "Stratemyer and Alger continue with added interest. February being the birth month of many great men, there are timely articles on: "The Longfellow Centennial, 1807-1907, by J. L. Harbour, and "Why Lincoln Became President," by Frank H. Sweet. One of the short stories calculated to stir their readers are: "Broken Shoes," the story of a boy whose determination to succeed increased with obstacles; "Sugarfoot," a humorous story of a bear and a fat boy; "John Russell's Ride," a story of pluck and daring of a boy of the revolution; "How I found the nest of the condor," the story of a hunt for the great California culture. NASHVILLE STUDENTS.

A Good House and Play Was Very Much Enjoyed.

The entertainment of the Nashville Students Saturday night was good. Plantation songs and dancing were the features of the evening. The playing of Lowery, the cornetist, was splendid. His triple tongue work was probably the best in quality of any concert work ever done here before. There were a number of excellent voices among the personnel. Altogether the Nashville Students was far above the ordinary troupe of the kind, and furnished excellent material for an evening of laughter and fun.—Joplin, Mo., Democrat.

The Nashville Students will appear at Holland's Opera House, next Wednesday night, Feb. 6.

Change of Positions.

Lawrence Bryant, for the past two years bookkeeper at the First National bank, has resigned his position to enter the employ of the American Snuff Company. Mr. Bryant is a young man of ability and the new position is a promotion. He will be succeeded at the bank by Will Bringham, who for the past year or more has been a valued employee of F. P. Gracey & Bros.—Leaf Chronicle.

Mr. Bryant is a son of Mrs. H. H. Bryant, formerly of Gracely. He is rapidly coming to the front as a fine young business man.

A Strange Story.

Mrs. Isaac W. Austill, of Chestnut Ridge, N. C., tells a strange story of a great suffering. "I was in bad condition for months, but got no relief. My periods had stopped, all but the pain. After taking part of a bottle of Wine of Cardui, nature worked properly and without pain. I advise all suffering women to use Cardui." A pure scientific remedy for women's ills. $1.00 at druggists.

LAST NIGHT'S GAME.

The opening game of the city league was to be played last night. It was to be a double-header. A large attendance was expected and great sport promised. Co. D. has a splendid team, S. K. C. has two strong ones, while the High School has the fastest they had for years.

LAST LOT SOLD.

Manager Jarrett Cleans up 1906 Crop.

Local Manager, C. F. Jarrett, this week closed out the last of the old crop of Association tobacco at schedule prices. It consisted of 45 hogheads, sold to the American Snuff Co. This makes 7,000 hogheads, sold by Mr. Jarrett, against 4,200 for the previous year. New tobacco is coming in rapidly.

SOLD FARM.

And Will Probably Engage in Other Business.

Mr. John A. White, of near Pod, has sold his farm of about seventy acres to Franklin Adams, of Davent. The price paid was $1,040. Mr. White is looking around with a view of engaging in the grocery business.

PERSONAL GOSSIP.

Mrs. Jno. B. Trice left Thursday for Tampa, Fla., to spend a month with her sons, Will and Rollin Trice.

Mr. Jas. H. Anderson has gone east to buy spring goods.

Mr. L. H. Davis is in Lexington attending a meeting of the Trustees of the Pythian Home.

Mr. Ughur Woolridge went to Knoxville, Tenn., on business this week.

Mrs. Claude Sisk has gone to Cincinnati, to join her husband, who has a position with the L. & N. in that city.

Mrs. Hattie Dietrich Soward after a ten day's visit to the family of her brother, Prof. C. H. Dietrich returned to her home in Akron, Ohio this week.

HOG CHOLERA

The Problem of a Cure is Now Solved.

Dr. J. H. Snoddy, of Alton, Ill. has discovered a positive cure and preventative for this terrible disease. He has had it in use for ten years and has saved millions of dollars' worth of cholera hogs for the public. The directions for its use are simple and easy to follow. Any practical farmer can stop the worst outbreak of cholera that ever came and save every hog that is able to take the treatment.

This treatment is not an expense to a farmer, because it clears his herd of every character of worm and parasite and puts them in such a thrifty condition that the extra gain they will make from the effect of this treatment will return the farmer $5 in this extra gain for every dollar's worth of the remedy used properly and right.

It is the greatest worm remedy known to medical science. It pays a farmer to keep his hogs clear of worms with it. When the hog is clear of worms and in good thrifty condition it is rather a hard matter to infect him with cholera without directly exposing him to the germ.

It pays to use the medicine whether there is any cholera around or not.

This wonderful remedy is manufactured by the Dr. J. H. Snoddy Remedy Co., Alton, Ill. and is for sale by Planters Hardware Co., incorporated, of Hopkinsville, and E. W. Stegar & Dixon, at Masonville, Ky. Anyone calling on either of these firms can get Dr. Snoddy's free book on hog cholera, free of charge. Every farmer should have one.

FATE OF A FORT

HISTORIC M'HENRY TO BE USED BY MARYLAND MILITIA.

National Guard Secure Lease of Place Which Is to Be Deserted by the Federal Forces Next April.

It is so often the privilege of citizen soldiers to come into possession of a fort and parade grounds which fairly thrill and pulsate with historic memories of loyalty and devotion to the country's flag and the nation's safety and honor, but such is the case with the national guard of the state of Maryland, which has through the efforts of the citizens of Baltimore and Adj. Gen. Clinton L. Riggs of the militia organization, secured a five-year lease of Fort M'Henry after it is abandoned by the war department on April 1, 1907. Thus will the old fort made famous in the song of the "Star-Spangled Banner," of Francis Scott Key, be preserved, and the stars and stripes will continue to float from the old ramparts as they did on that memorable September morning of 1814, when the rising sun, piercing the smoke of battle during the bombardment of the fort by the British, disclosed them to the delighted view of Key, imprisoned on one of the British warships, and inspired him to write "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The land of which Fort M'Henry is a part was taken up in 1661 under the name of Whetstone Point, under which name it was sold to the members of the Society of Friends. Its importance as a military fort was early recognized, and in 1775 it had been strengthened by the construction of a water battery, then impregnable, honey-combed by magazines and secret underground passages. This battery was situated on the left, facing the water approaches of the fort, the water of the harbor. The fort remained under the control of the state until 1793, when it was turned over to the national government, and named in honor of Col. James M'Henry of Maryland, who was secretary of war in Washington's cabinet.

In 1794, with funds raised by public subscription, a great five star fort of brick, cement and earth was erected, whose dungeons in the civil war became the prison of some of the most prominent citizens of Baltimore whose loyalty to the union was suspected and whose activities were feared.

For more than 130 years the star-wart ramparts of the fort have kept a tireless vigil. In times of peace they have gleamed resplendent in their cloak of green. In times of war they have frowned defiance at the foe.

The old fort is not so close to Baltimore as an invading force, safely out of reach of its guns, might easily bombard Baltimore at will. New forts more suitably located and with modern equipments have been constructed to cope with the great warships of the day, and the usefulness of the old fort, even as an inner defense, has passed away absolutely. But it will live in history, linked with the national song.

On September 13, 1814, after the sacking of Washington, the British fleet came up the bay, having on board the troops under the veteran Gen. Ross. It was the latter's boast that he would eat his supper "in Baltimore or hell." He never got to Baltimore, having been killed at North Point, where he landed in the early part of the battle.

Francis Scott Key, a distinguished son of Maryland, had on the evening before the bombardment gone on the American cartel ship Minden under a flag of truce to effect the release of some captured friends. He and his vessel were detained in order that he might not take back information of the lively preparations he witnessed for the bombardment. The ship was anchored in sight of the fort.

While the bombardment raged in the night and early morning, he began to compose the inspiring lines.

Many Styles of Balls. Golf balls are now being stuffed with gelatin. In the early days of the game the golf ball was stuffed with feathers. This was also the ball used in playing "shibby," which is deemed by an eighteenth century commentator as "an inferior species of golf, generally played by young people, and called in London hockey." The golf ball used about the same time was more modern, being a leather ball about as big as one's head, filled with wind. Most deadly all were the balls originally used in playing bowls, which were made of marble, and whence was derived the game of marble.

DEATH OF FARMER

Victim of Lung Trouble Passes Away.

Mr. James Price, a farmer of near Empire, died Wednesday night, after an illness of short duration of lung trouble. He was about fifty years old. Deceased is survived by his widow and three children. The interment took place in the family burying ground Thursday afternoon.

Died at Auburn.

Mrs. Mary Blakey, mother of Dr. T. W. Blakey, of this city, was buried at Auburn yesterday. She was 70 years of age and was a noble Christian character, kind-hearted and charitable. Dr. Blakey and his brother were in the East at the time of his mother's death. They were telegraphed and hastened back to Auburn, where many of the family had gathered together when the sad news of Mrs. Blakey was sent out. Her death was somewhat sudden. The family has the sympathy of a large circle of friends and acquaintances.

Five Baptized.

Five new members were baptized at the Baptist church Wednesday night after prayer meeting. This leaves only two more converts of the recent meeting to be baptized.

Uncle By.

Workmen.
A man with a pick and a song
With a worth $2 a day,
But the man with a pick and a grouch
Is dear, whatever you pay!

Rilla, Thrills and Frills.
The doctor who told the poet he should give his stomach continuous and vigorous exercise was evidently not well posted on the literary life.

The married man who sees double may be pardoned if what he sees is twins.

THE "PUSSANT" SHAH.
An exchange tells us that Shah of Persia has 500 cats, but leaves to our imagination the pithetic condition of his boot-jack.

HE LIKES CAKE.
The editor of a Kansas paper has evolved a brilliant advertising scheme by which he hopes to add at least a dozen new names to his subscription list before February 1. He is advertising that he will send his paper free for one week to all newly married couples sending him a piece of cake as an evidence of good faith.

FALSE STATEMENT.
"Black and blue brown and gray eyes all reveal character," says a would-be scientist. Bosh! You never can tell from a black eye who was the innocent bystander.

DO COME UP TO DINNER WITH ME!

Uncle By.

The love that a cannibal has for his fellow man is neither platonic nor passionate, but it seems to be all consuming.

THE CLINGING VINE.
He told her that when he married,
he wanted matrimony to be like a Hog it. Her whole family arrived next day and stayed forever—that, is, they are there yet.

MORTUARY.
As I contemplate it now, when I am dead, I really do not want a great monument so much as the lasting memory of those who knew me best and loved me most—if there be any such. Instead of a costly headstone bearing some such motto as "He done his darndest," I prefer that I should be me hidden away in the hearts of those I knew on earth, a tender and a sacred memory, a memory that can be charitable enough to forgive my faults and remember only the little good there was in me. To be remembered as an earnest endeavor in the melancholy of life is better than a name inscribed in marble shafts of granite.

SOCIETY HOGS.
Henry Jones chaperoned a car load of hogs to Chicago Tuesday—Illinois Suburban News.

POPULAR SONGS.
A young aunt of this city recently visited one of the music stores and asked the curly-headed clerk to hand her forward something likely to wait on her.

Have you 'Old Black Joe' with variations?
"No madam, I am sorry, but the last number was sold yesterday."

The young man gasped at this, but managed to reply:
"N—no, madam."

"Well," said Uncle Care II I Should Leave You."
By the time the young man had recovered from his fainting spell, the young woman had gone and he was even denied the time-faded expression, "This is so sudden!"

POPULAR ROAL PR HOSTESS BLENHEIM

KING HAAKON AND QUEEN MAUD OF NORWAY WIN FAVOR.

Whether at Home or Abroad They Are Accorded Generous Treatment
—Their Two Official Residences.

It is only one short year ago on Nov. 25 that Charles, Prince of Denmark, his wife and only child landed in Norway in response to the offer of the crown of the kingdom, following the dissolution of the union between the lands of Norway and Sweden, and yet in that brief space of time they have won their way to the affections of the people of their adopted country, and have recently been winning new expressions of friendship and regard from neighboring kingdoms which they have visited. They have just paid a most auspicious visit to England in response to the invitation of the crown and again became the guests of Emperor William of Germany.

When at home the official residences of King Haakon are the palace at Christiania, and the two-family comfortable manor house on the island of Bygdoy, about 25 minutes' drive from the city. Up to the present time the sojourn of royal king and queen at the palace has been but temporary, for a quantity of the inventory which belonged to King Oscar had to be removed, and no time was allowed in which to replace it or do more than fit the palace up as a residence proper, for their majesties. The building, which, except for the great pre-tem, was first occupied in 1819, its foundation stone having been laid by King Carl Johan so early as the year 1825. It stands on a commanding site, 120 feet above the sea level, surrounded by grounds open to the public at all hours, with the exception of a small portion which is reserved for the use of the royal family when residing at the palace, but which, being quite open and exposed to the public view, affords no privacy. Consequently, the royal couple have been obliged to call on the public to the palace, and to the public view, affords no privacy. More than any place in England the surroundings of Blenheim retain the atmosphere of olden days; its young inhabitants live about them the manners of the old feudal times when all the surrounding country paid fealty to one lord. In the great park of Blenheim that was once a royal domain had been located the ancient residence of the kings of England. In the old castle, whose site is still marked by two acemores trees, King Alfred the Great lived and reigned, and later in English history the poet Chaucer lived just where the chief entrance to the grounds now stands.

It was taken over by the province at the Reformation, and by it until 1587, when it was purchased by King Carl Johan in 1857, but later on resold to the government, since when it has remained the property of the state. On returning to the capital after the coronation, it was occupied by their majesties, and it was there they had the pleasure of entertaining Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria of Great Britain during their visit at Christiania in September last. The house stands in pretty grounds, amidst pretty surroundings, and on an island, so that the majesties are pleased to find recreation in walking, riding and driving, or steaming on the fjord in a launch which has been placed at their disposal by the admiralty, while the crown prince either proceeds with his parents, or takes exercise riding on his donkey. Dragon Gave Him Two Horses.
An emperor regined on his way from Galicia to Bohemia, attended by a day of the village of Portendort recently.

One of the farmers, learning that some of the troops horses were to be sold, tried, having no money of his own, to purchase some with which to purchase one or two of the animals. Nobody would lend him any.

He wrote directly to the emperor, requesting him to lend him the money to purchase one of the horses. The emperor, covered by the majesties of the first duke of Marlborough, immediately at the rear of the hall, and connected with it, is the grand salon, covered by masterpieces of painters, forming the names and representing inhabitants of the different nations of the world.

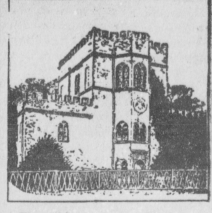

Remarkable apartments on a princely scale fill the second floor. There are the state drawing-rooms, the dining-room and a library, originally intended for an art gallery, 180 feet long, and containing 5,000 volumes. In the chapel marked by a work of Ryabach, lie the remains of the duke of Marlborough and his duchess, with their two sons.

When Consuelo Vanderbilt became the duchess of Marlborough, she gave liberally of her large fortune for the rehabilitation of the palace and grounds of the ancient ducal possessions, and Blenheim palace took on new glory and splendor, and has during recent years been the scene of most brilliant social functions. But recently a cloud has arisen upon the matrimonial sky of the Marlboroughs and it is said that the young American duchess has left the palace and grounds never to return.

This has excited to turn the eyes of Americans especially in that direction and excite new interest in the place which has not only swallowed

FORT OF SAN JUAN

DEFENSES WHICH SPAIN PLACED ABOUT PORTO RICAN CITY.

Are Picturesque Reminders of the Conquest and Rule of the Former Masters of the Island.

Part of the defensive wall which the Spaniards built entirely about San Juan, Porto Rico, has been destroyed, but with this exception it still is a walled city, and were it not for the well-paved streets, the water and sewer systems, electric lights and street railways, the mark of a military city, it would still have all the appearance of a sixteenth century Spanish town.

As one enters the city from the east by the military road, he is impressed with the extensive system of fortifications constructed by the Spaniards for the defense of the capital; and the military observer is most impressed by the fact that the system has been evolved with special reference to a land defense, with a view to withstanding an attack by way of the military road.

A short distance further and the advanced works of Fort San Cristobal are reached. This old fort, with its battlements and keep, is a striking example of the Vauban system of fortification.

From El Abanico to the main fort a covered way leads up the glade, with frequent angles and recesses in the walls to admit of defense should the enemy have forced an entrance from the front.

Fort San Cristobal was formerly connected with Fort El Morro and the palace of the governor, both more than a mile away, by underground passages, but these have long since become clogged up with debris and closed.

Fort El Morro is in reality the citadel of the entire system of fortifications, and being so far inside of the lines has no advanced or out works.
It is a noble structure, guarding as it does the entrance to the city and has on the one side and serving on the other as a last stand against an attack from the land. This fort was built in the period from 1584 to 1606, and was completed just 200 years ago and one year before the earliest settlement was established in America.

The moat is crossed by a stone bridge, and one enters the fort through the sallyport, where a sentinel stands guard. Over the sallyport was formerly a bronze coat of arms of Spain, but this disappeared before the fort was turned over to the American troops, and it is thought that some member of the Spanish garrison threw it into the sea to prevent its falling into the hands of the conquerors.

Inside the fort is a paved court, surrounded on all sides by casemates occupied as quarters for the men, mess-rooms, kitchen, storerooms office, post exchange, etc. To the front, right and left, as one enters, are other sally-ports.

On top of the fort stands El Morro lighthouse, 130 or more feet above the water, may be seen for miles out at sea.

The present lighthouse was erected to replace the one destroyed in the bombardment by Admiral Sampson's fleet in 1898.

A short distance from El Morro, and immediately above the wall, is Casa Blanca, the military headquarters in Porto Rico. This old, fort-like house

Sally Port, Fort El Morro.

is said to be the oldest residence in the Western Hemisphere and was built by Ponce de Leon, the first governor of the island in 1520.

As a result of the treaty of Paris at the close of the war with Spain, all the heavy guns mounted in the fortifications of San Juan have been dismounted and shipped back to Spain, and the artillery troops have, in consequence, been withdrawn from the island. Extensive plans for the proper defense of this important and strategic harbor, utilizing the most modern guns and accessories, have been made in Washington, and before many years have elapsed the new batteries will be constructed, but the old Spanish defenses of the city will always be of interest on account of their completeness and historic association.

Not Yet.

"Do you regard yourself as a reformer?" asked the friend.

"Not yet," answered Senator Sorghum,
"but after people get tired of some of the new ideas I may come to the front and help reform them back to the old ways."

To live too fast is to die too fast.

Washington Letter

What Is Going On in the National Capital—Perry Belmont Building Spite Fence to Shut Off View of Thomas Nelson Page—Great Demand for Ten-Dollar Bills.

WASHINGTON.—Perry Belmont and Thomas Nelson Page have a "mad" with each other. Belmont developments in the strife between the millionaire and the author have kept society and officialdom at the capital wondering what would come next.

Mr. Belmont won the latest round. He built a spite fence right across from Mr. Page's best beloved window seat, and those who have followed the Belmont fortunes in the struggle claim easy honors for the capitalist.

Mr. Page drew first blood, and it was perhaps a stinging blow which marked the battle's inception, when he wrote some pieces for the magazines which were not highly flattering to Perry Belmont and his brother, O. H. P.

Mr. Belmont read the magazine articles. He also heard the anecdote in which Mr. Page played the lead. A few days later the real estate transfer noted that the triangular strip of ground had passed into the possession of P. Belmont.

When next Mr. Page sought recuperation from literary toil his joyous landscape had degenerated into a barren symphony. Mr. Belmont's laborers had erected a high and unsightly fence and another fence started in on a rock wall, which sets Mr. Page's property into a settlement by itself and with the view terminating at the lot line.

In the Belmont camp it is rumored with glee that Mr. Belmont is to build a splendid home on his side of the high wall, and that there will be no communicating and handy side doors between the two neighbors.

AN INDICATION OF GENERAL PROSPERITY.
Secretary Shaw has succeeded in securing the return to the treasury of 600 $1,000 bills. The place of these in the circulation has been taken, in large part, by new ten-dollar bills. The reason is that appeals have been coming to the treasury constantly to send out more tens, because there was a tremendous demand for them.

This demand is simply a sign of the great prosperity of the country, according to financial men. Several years ago there was a constant cry for one and two-dollar bills. That cry has passed and people are waiting for tens.

The supposition is that in these far financial days the multitudes are looking upon the ten-dollar note as lightly as they looked upon a note of one-fifth or one-tenth its value in the days when banks were breaking and people were asking the way to the soup-house.

There is probably no joke about the statement that the demand for bills of a high denomination means that prosperity is abroad. When wages are low and when people are spending little or nothing for luxuries they may want ten-dollar bills, but they do not desire the way to the soup-house. The requests for "tens" worried the treasury department for a long while. Under the law it could not put these bills out except in exchange for money didn't come in as rapidly as it should; so it was that an attempt was made to get some notes of large denomination from the financial centers to put the "sawbucks" out in their place. There isn't much use for $1,000 bills in the paths of general circulation, and it was considered better to get them in and let the tens out. In this way the treasury managed to put 60,000 ten-dollar bills into the country practically at one shipment.

"JACK" GREENWAY DECLINES FEDERAL JOB.

Capt. "Jack" Greenway, rough rider and personal friend of President Roosevelt since they fought and camped together on the wet soil of Cuba, has been offered the position of commissioner general of the land office to succeed William A. Richards, who is shortly to go out of office. He cannot, however, accept, and greatly regrets his inability to do so, because of the affection he bears his friend and chief.

Capt. Greenway is engaged in iron mining in Minnesota and has given certain pledges to the company he is employed with. He does not think he is at liberty to ask release from any of these pledges.

The noted ex-soldier and football player of Yale has been a guest of President Roosevelt for several days. He is received there on terms of the most cordial friendship, and in past years has frequently visited the president and family. He is as much admired by the Roosevelt boys as by the president. It was Greenway's great playing and management of the Yale football team in his college days that many times defeated President Roosevelt's alma mater, Harvard. The prowess of Greenway as a victor in the past appeal to the Roosevelt boys as much as his courage in war and his many qualities in peace appeal to the president.

It was Capt. Greenway and John E. McIlhenry, now a civil service commissioner, who accompanied the president on his last trip through the country. The two Johns. He succeeded in getting McIlhenry to come to Washington and take an official position, and when he began to hunt for a man he thought would be bomb proof against certain influences exerted in the land office he thought of Greenway. The latter's recent ventures are paying him too well, though, to take a government office.

FEDERAL JUDGES FACING CRITICISM.

Before the winter is over considerable is likely to be heard about federal judges who overture laws on constitutional grounds after the ablest lawyers among the nation's statesmen have spent weeks and months in perfecting the same. Recent decisions with respect to the employers' liability act have already started the discussion.

In his last annual message to congress the president referred to the almost nonchalant ease with which federal judges declare unconstitutional measures which have been "solemnly" considered by congress.

Almost everybody has forgotten that Judges Evans and McCall were once members of the lower house of congress. Neither of them made much of a constitutional lawyer. The two Johns. being pointed out that many occupants of the federal bench in the lower courts to-day are men who, if their terms were to expire this coming spring, would be known as "lame ducks." Most of them have been appointed simply to take care of them when they get out of a job. Judges Quarles of Wisconsin, McConas of Maryland and Pritchard of North Carolina were all senators who had lost out when elevated to life positions on the bench. Aside from Judges Evans and McCall, there is Judge Dayton of West Virginia, who was a member of the house. Few, if any, of these judges when in congress ever cut any figure in constitutional debates. Inasmuch as President Roosevelt has freely criticized judicial decisions in the recent past, it is probable that the policy of rewarding so-called "lame ducks" also may come in for criticism from other sources of public life.

A SAVING SOUTH AMERICAN DIPLOMAT.

There is a well-known South American diplomat here who is rather niggardly in his expenditures. He was the President's reception to the diplomatic corps the other night, and fairly ablaze with gold lace. Because of his rank he was well toward the end of the line. Just as he was about to leave, he was no gloves, but carried a package carefully wrapped in tissue paper in his hand. As the line filed past the President this diplomat, when only four or five files away from the President, unwrapped the package and pulled on a pair of white gloves. After shaking hands with the President he carefully removed the gloves, wrapped them in the tissue paper, and put them in his pocket to await the next reception.

A "STOLE" TRUNK.
Literary aspiration is lively despite these commercial days. A few weeks ago I received the following letter which, decidedly, is too good to waste itself just on my frayed sense of humor. The letter is from a well-known Massachusetts town, and reads:
"Dear Sir—Having noticed your Address given in a little Magazine Called—Seeing that you purchase Manuscripts, on imagination of innocent have three which I will herewith give you a little description of first one is 'An Old Hermit' containing 547 words. Second is 'The Story of a Stole Trunk' or a Western Adventure 479 words third 'The Three Robbers' containing 472 words. Hope this will meet with your approval and your Decision You Can purchase the whole or part according to your Satisfaction. Please give this your immediate attention an offer from you will be greatly acceptable. Providing payment is Received As soon as the Manuscript is accepted Please let me hear from you once and only."
Very Respectfully Yours,

Here's a graphic descriptive writer who should have a better job. Who wants him?
John Dodd born and raised near Denton Tenn came to Ducktown some four years back, he is said to be the best blacksmith in the basin he is also a great lover of string music and performs well, he has possessed many things in life which made him happy, when he married, about a year ago he thought the possession of a sweet tempered companion was reaching the zenith in happiness but alas he learned last Monday that he was mistaken as he looked on two little bright eyes his joy had no bounds although his little family has increased calling for more expense money he may spread his feet out over the floor at all times of the night as he paces back and four shining a lullaby, the midnight hours may cause him to drop the paragonic nervously, he may even get out barefooted in the darkness of the night and walk over fresh plough ground two or three hours to rest himself as he raises his eyes upward with nothing visible but the miriads of stars in the dark vault above him, he will still be happy as the possessor of a little blacksmith, we wish his success may continue—Hinkley (Mc) Gazette.

A MODISH COSTUME.

Patterns Nos. 5656 and 5692.—The liking for gimp effects becomes stronger as the season advances, and the styles bid fair to continue all through the season. The daintiness and simplicity of the design here pictured renders it particularly adaptable to the foulards and soft silks now shown in such charming variety. The blouse is cut in scalloped outline and opens with a gimp of all over lace. The skirt is shaped by nine gores, and is an especially attractive model. It admits of being made in round, short round, or in-step lengths, and if preferred the yoke may be omitted. For 36-inch bust measure two and one-eighth yards of 27-inch material will be required for the waist, and for the skirt 11 1/4 yards. The gimp will require two and three-fourths yards. Ladies' gimp blouse No. 5656: Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Ladies' plaited skirt with or without a yoke, No. 5692: Sizes for 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches bust measure.

The above illustration calls for two separate patterns. The price is ten cents for the waist and ten cents for the skirt.

This pattern will be sent to you on receipt of 10 cents. Address all orders to the Pattern Department of this paper. Be sure to give size and number of pattern wanted. For convenience, write your order on the following coupon:

Read Carefully Our Plan!

THE KENTUCKIAN will send to the Jamestown Exposition the four most popular young women in Christian County. The Kentuckian will pay every cent of expense, including railroad fare; Pullman fare; meals on train; hotel bills; street car fare; admission to grounds and amusement concessions; side trips to points in the vicinity of the Exposition grounds.

The contest is open to any young lady making her home in Christian County. For each year's subscription to the Kentuckian at $2.00 the subscriber will be entitled to cast 40 votes.

Our contest began Nov.
15th and will continue for 6 months; to May 15.

YOU choose the candidate—WE don't. The minute a vote is cast for a young woman she becomes a candidate and her name is placed upon the published list, together with the total vote cast for her up to the time the list is published.

When a subscription is received at this office the subscriber is first credited with the amount of his subscription and the number of votes his subscription represents is credited to the candidate named by him.

The vote will be COUNTED EVERY FRIDAY at noon and each candidate will be credited with her new vote and her total vote to date and the result will be published in the next issue of the Kentuckian.

TABERNACLE

Attraction No. 5, Next Monday Night.

Lovers of the histrionic who never attend theatres will doubtless spend a pleasant evening at the tabernacle next Monday night, the occasion being the first appearance before a Hopkinsville audience of Wallace Bruce Ambary, who fills No. 5 of the regular tabernacle course.

People who like a dash of the comic as well as the more serious phases of life, with enough impersonation thrown in as good count, will get it all Monday night, with a little poetry thrown in as extra seasoning. Mr. Ambary is actor, poet and reader. He has quit the stage for the platform and wherever he has appeared has so pleased his audiences that the press has about exhausted its vocabulary in his praise, one of the New York papers declaring that "he is the embodiment of reality in every selection he gives." Opie Reed says "he is a man with the soul of poetry—a veritist, and his work is a truth accented on the stage."

YOSEMITE VALLEY

PLACED UNDER THE PROTECTING CARE OF FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.

Future Generations Will Thus Be Assured of Beholding the Wonders of Nature's Strange Moods.

Future generations who will visit the Yosemite valley and marvel at the wonderful beauty and grandeur of this garden spot will be grateful to the federal government, by whose act in the year 1896 this spot in the great state of California was preserved as a perpetual government reservation. With the taking over of the Yosemite valley, as it used to be called, new boundary lines have been surveyed, and within three months the hitherto tedious stage journey over the mountains will have given place to the trolley line which enters the valley through a canyon at its western end, and next spring the tourists who visit the wonderful place will be able to make the trip comfortably by trolley—the requisite electricity for which will be furnished by water power.

The reservation, as now officially outlined, is 32 miles in width, from east to west, and 40 miles long from north to south. But the valley itself is only six miles long by half a mile in width. It is sunk just about one mile vertically below the general level of the adjacent region, resembling a gigantic trough of irregular shape, hollowed out in the mountains. Nearly in the center of the state of California, the Yosemite is 155 miles from San Francisco, as the crow flies—little south of east.

In early days the whites in that part of California had a good deal of trouble with the Indians, settlers being murdered occasionally, and various outrages committed. It was learned that the savages had some sort of retreat far up in the mountains—a natural stronghold, in which they deemed themselves safe from pursuit or attack—and, curiosity on the subject being excited, a military expedition was organized to explore the region and drive out the Indians.

Under the guidance of an old chief, Tenaya, whose name is perpetuated in a beautiful lake between Mount Hoffman and Cathedral peak, the party finally reached the valley, whose wonders they were first of civilized human beings to behold. They killed some of the Indians and made peace. Nevertheless, not long afterward, in 1852, a party of miners was attacked by redskins in the valley, two of them being slain near Bridal Veil cascade. Another expedition followed, more Indians were killed, and the rest were driven out, being compelled to take refuge with a tribe of Monos on the east side of the Sierras. But trouble followed; the fugitives stole horses from the Monos, fled to the Yosemite, were overtaken, and in a battle were almost entirely exterminated.

In 1856 the first pleasure travel to the Yosemite began, and a trail entering the valley from the south side was opened. The first house was built in that year, opposite Yosemite falls. The whole region was originally part of the public domain belonged to the government of the United States, but the government gave the valley to California, though retaining possession of an extensive surrounding area, together with the valley, has been known for many years as the Yosemite park.

The word Yosemite means "eternity" in the valley when the white first came there, it is said, one village, comprising about 300 souls. These people were of the Miwok, who were much the latest nation in California, their territory extending over a considerable portion of the state. The mountain valleys in those days were thickly wooded, and about the rivers, which were full of fish, numerous villages were scattered. But they were very primitive savages, both sexes and all ages going entirely naked. Their descendants to-day are commonly known as Diasee, and every autumn they gather in and about this valley, thousands of acres, where they collect food supply, and which they store in curious cylindrical receptacles of basket-work fastened on poles or in the forks of trees.

RED CROSS HOSPITAL

FINE, LARGE STRUCTURE TO BE OPENED IN NEW YORK CITY.

Institution Whose Career of Mercy is to Be Rewarded by the Possession of a New Building.

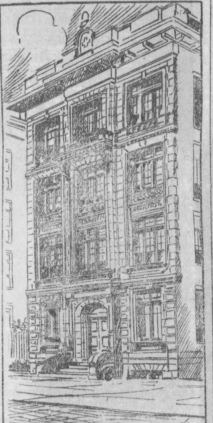

Since 1894 New York city has had a Red Cross hospital, but the early history of the institution is checked with the memory of dark periods of financial difficulties which made it seem at times as though the work would have to be abandoned. But better days were in store for the institution, and now its officers and friends are looking forward to the early occupancy of at least a part of the new building which is being erected in New York city.

The New York Red Cross hospital was organized in 1894, incorporated in 1896 and re-incorporated in 1903 under charters granted by the state of New York, and has been carrying on its mission of Christianity and mercy in a quiet and effective manner, having treated several thousand afflicted poor, and defraying all its expenses through the generosity of its few officers, treating all applicants alike, irrespective of creed or nationality, until the ever-increasing demands that were being daily made upon its limited resources forced it to accept a wider scope, and the opening of the first section of its new hospital early next year is the initial step toward the founding of a permanent institution that will stand for time immemorial as a tribute to the wisdom and generosity of a merciful and loving people.

The unconditional presentation of the building site made by the president, William T. Wardwell, and the liberal support given by the patrons of the building fund have made the erection of the building possible.

The present officers and patrons of the building fund are: President, William T. Wardwell; vice president, John S. Hoyer; treasurer, Alfred L. Manierre; secretary, Allen Wardwell; surgeon in chief, A. Monae Lesser, M. D.

It was in the latter part of 1896 the hospital saw its darkest days; it seemed as if the work would have to be discontinued, and it was at a meeting in which the advisability of closing the doors of the institution was discussed that Mr. Wardwell stepped forth and volunteered his loyal support to prevent the closing of this worthy institution. From that time the hospital rose to its present state, and the greater the number of poor treated by the hospital, the happier Mr. Wardwell, and whatever the deficiency amounted to it was reimbursed by him. It was Mr. Wardwell who saw that the time would come when the hospital was inadequate for its requirements, and the place upon which the hospital is being built is the outcome of the handsome gift of $100,000 which Mr. Wardwell made to the New York Red Cross.

The principle upon which the method of treatment in the hospital is based and upon which the success was established in home and war service was decided upon in 1897, after a number of experiments at the Red Cross hospital were concluded. The staff treated disease without drugs or methods which by observation have been found to exert a bad influence upon organs and functions, provided under method or drug would be of as much benefit without producing the ill effects of the first.

Temperature is not reduced by drugs known as antipyretics. Water is allowed freely after all kinds of surgical operation and in fevers.

The New York Red Cross consists of an indoor and outdoor department. The hospital represents the indoor department, while the attendance of the staff to needy patients at their own homes constitutes the outdoor department. The total number attended in the indoor and outdoor departments up to date is somewhat more than 1000. The average mortality rate, including all classes of disease, was 3% per cent. Excluding all malignant diseases, the mortality was a little less than 1 per cent.
